Lab Supplies for Processing Samples

French Fry Trays

Each lab will need a receptacle to hold the fresh samples that are received. The trays shown are paper. The trays can be aluminum or paper but should not be plastic.

Coin Envelopes

After the samples are ground, they should be stored in small envelopes like the ones shown. They can be easily labeled for future reference.

Storage Box

The lab should obtain a box that can store a number of the envelopes that will be used such as the one shown here. Each box should be labeled with the samples it contains.